The OECD has acquired a high reputation as an uncompromising but important advisor when it comes to drawing comparisons, compiling statistics and issuing recommendations.

Angela Merkel
Federal Chancellor, Germany

France is proud and delighted to host the OECD. It is here that every day we are building a strong economic multilateralism that our counties need to face contemporary challenges.

Emmanuel Macron
President, France
The OECD — the most influential economic thinktank in the world... I have great expectations for the wisdom and leadership found in such great abundance in the OECD.

Shinzō Abe
Prime Minister, Japan

We welcome the efforts made in the OECD to encourage a broader exchange of views to tackle new challenges and to promote multidimensional and horizontal analysis and work.

Michelle Bachelet
United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights,
Former President, Chile
over 100,000 policymakers visit the OECD annually.

Business Briefs are short editorials (500-700 words) written by business leaders and published in the OECD Observer and OECD Yearbook. This unique business platform offers the opportunity for CEOs and other executives to provide their insights and experiences on how to improve fundamental government policy alongside those by government policymakers and the OECD's own in-house experts. With its hallmark blue design, business leaders use the prestigious OECD Observer Business Brief to ensure their corporate position on key policy discussions is clearly laid out to reach key audiences.
